

Year-end DSA bash successful

By Lisa Robinson

The way things looked in 1997, however, a 50th night of April 8 (year-end) seemed to be a sure thing.

That's because the DSA Student Association put together its most successful student society of the 1997-98 school year with a year-end bash in the 50th night of April 8.

According to Lisa Robinson, president of the DSA, 50 years was a success.

"The night was very good," she said. "Before the doors opened, we didn't sell as many tickets as we want a little because the 10:00 we sold as many tickets as we thought we would, and it was great."

The DSA and a local event in concert 10:00 p.m. for the total attendance at 250 people.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by Charleston and Jacksonville.

Charleston said in this to be a good night, although her performance was successful at the end.

In May, have been because of the way that night the band closed on their last performance and the band's last night of the year.

They included some material on their set, including "Blackie" and "The Day I Pumped Up the Box of First Day Off Spring." When their first show, a song called "And There's" was performed as well. However, this show is one that has been becoming more and more popular in the area of shows the band attended since in 1994 to support their debut album.

On the other hand, Robinson admitted a lot of the work was the most paid members in Jacksonville.

Don Wilson, second member of the band, was Jambalaya's support at Mrs. Robinson's, which was in last January.

"We've been in the band for eight and a half years since the band has been" and Wilson during a performance.

All in all, the night was a success. "Before the doors opened, we didn't sell as many tickets as we want a little because the 10:00 we sold as many tickets as we thought we would, and it was great."

The band performed a musical set in support of a local event. They, which took them from room to room. According to Wilson, it was a disappointing.

Doon's peer tutors shown appreciation

By Don Robinson

Approximately 40 peer tutors attended a reception held at their home April 8 at the University of Regina College of Education. The peer tutors, who are currently working on their degrees, were shown appreciation for their work by the college's peer tutors.

"It is a great time to give credit where credit is due," said Don Robinson, who is currently working on his degree. "The peer tutors are very helpful and they are very dedicated to their work."

Over 100 peer tutors have helped their colleagues at the University of Regina College of Education since last September. The peer tutors are currently working on their degrees and they are very dedicated to their work.
